CENTENARIAN IS DEAD

Miss Eliza Angus, Brattleboro, Was Born in England.

Brattleboro, June 25.—Miss Eliza Angus, for about half a century a resident of Brattleboro and believed to have been the oldest person in town, died this morning at 45 Frost street after an illness of eight months at an advanced age. Although no authentic date of her birth in England is obtainable here she is known to have been over 100 years old.

Miss Angus was born in England and after the death of her parents came to live with an aunt in Albany, N. Y. She was an expert cook and lived in several of the older families in Brattleboro, but for the last 44 years had lived in the home of Mrs. S. B. Brown, 45 Frost street.

She was a member of the Reformed church of Albany and a woman keenly interested in the news of the day and a constant reader, retaining all of her faculties up to the time of a fall three weeks ago, which caused a general breaking down. She was a woman faithful to all details of life and beloved by all who knew her.

The funeral will be held in the home Sunday.

ITALIAN BREAKS JAIL

Secures Gun and Tries to Murder Fellow Countryman.

Rutland, June 25.—After cutting his way out of jail at Bridgewater early this morning, Mario Branco, an Italian, attempted to take the life of a fellow countryman, Carmine Costa, near the lumber job run by William Rice in the village east of this city and today the Rutland police were notified to be on the lookout for the fugitive, who was supposed to have been headed this way. Up to a late hour tonight he had not been seen, although the local officials are keeping a close watch for any movement the Italian may make in this vicinity.

The trouble between Branco and Costa dates back for two weeks when they had a quarrel over some wood which both had been cutting. It is claimed Branco left the Rice wood lot and came to Rutland, returning the first of this week armed with a gun. He lurked about the camp and the owners were afraid he would take the life of Costa, and Constable E. V. Fraser of Bridgewater was notified. He found the man hiding behind a tree and on the formal charge of hunting without a license the man was locked up in the Bridgewater jail about eleven o'clock Thursday night.

Branco returned to the Rice camp this morning and again he secured his gun, and later in the morning, it is claimed, he shot at Costa, but his aim was poor and the bullet missed its mark.

WILL HAVE A TROUT DINNER

Addison County F. and G. League to Meet at Dunmore.

Middlebury, June 25.—The third annual summer outing of the Addison County Fish and Game league will be held at Meehan's Dunmore park, Lake Dunmore, Tuesday, June 29. An elaborate program has been planned for the day. A dinner of Dunmore trout will be served in the pavilion from 1:30 o'clock to 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The feature of the afternoon sports will be a baseball game between teams comprised of members of the league. The Middlebury band will furnish music throughout the afternoon.

CARRY OWN LIABILITY

Several Companies in Vermont Will Not Insure.

Montpelier, June 24.—The Industrial Accident Board has been holding hearings at the state house for some days on the question of responsibility of certain companies to carry their own liability insurance. Some of them have satisfied the board that they are financially responsible to comply with the terms of the act and the others they consider partly responsible and require them in addition to file some of their treasury securities or a bond with the state treasurer.

The hearings have been held under section 45, subdivision 4, which reads: "By satisfying the Industrial board as to the financial responsibility of the employer to comply with the provisions of this act."

The companies which have been approved are the Standard Oil Company of New York, represented by B. O. Foster of Burlington; Rutland railroad, Proctor Marble Co., Clarendon & Pittsfield railroad, Wallingford Manufacturing Company, represented by E. W. Lawrence, New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., and its Vermont subsidiaries, the Passumpsic, Champlain and Vermont Telephone companies, represented by M. B. Jones and E. W. Longley of Boston; Central Vermont Railway Co., represented by Charles Black and Edmund Deschenes of Burlington; Consolidated Rendering Co., represented by A. G. Hastings of Boston and Mr. Denning of Burlington; American Hoe and Fork Co.

Additional security in the shape of bonds filed with the state treasurer were required in some instances. Where companies are not financially responsible they carry liability insurance.

BELTED JACKET SUIT IN SHEPHERD'S CHECK.

The belted effect, which gives the fullness the effect of being taken in with side pleats, is the pronounced feature of the coat which forms a part of this shepherd's check costume. A white cloth collar stitched with black braid finishes the V-shaped neck, and the sleeves have two seams. The skirt is one of the new high-waisted circular models, trimmed down the front with a row of buttons. Heavy silk covers the buttons, which appear very attractively also upon the front and sleeves of the coat. The entire costume requires 4 1/2 yards 34-inch material, with 1/2 yard cloth for the collar.

In cutting a tailored coat the slightest inaccuracy means disaster. By referring to the cutting guide it will be noticed that the front of the coat, placed on a lengthwise thread of the material, is so carefully placed that the neck line rests directly against the selvage of the check, while the lower edge of the front is removed about 1/4 of an inch. As slight as the difference may seem, it affects the line of the coat in front, therefore the pattern should be laid with mathematical precision on the material. To the right of the front is placed the underfacing.

Then along the lengthwise fold of the check is laid the back, and to the left of the back the collars and belt. If the home dressmaker prefers the shawl collar cut off edges of square collar and underfacing on single small "o" perforations. The open neck and round collar without revers is gained by cutting out neck edge of front and cutting off upper edge of underfacing on double "oo" perforations. The length of the jacket can be regulated according to the fancy of the wearer, single "o" perforations being provided for such regulation.

The pattern is an excellent one for the heavier linen materials that are used for tailored models. The pockets may be omitted or their presence may be emphasized by stitchings of braid.

Leather sports hats are among the leading members of Millinery Land. Tam crowns of black velvet upon straw foundations are lovely and fashionable.

GYMNASIUM SUIT FOR A GIRL.

which the blouse can be slipped on quickly for a fitting to correct any imperfections and regulate the length. In applying pleats, pockets, turning in the hem, etc., it is well to bear in mind that the large "O" perforations indicate the front. Face collar and sew to neck edge as notched. Close shoulder seam of pleats as notched; turn under edges of pleats and belt on slot perforations; adjust on front and back, edge of pleat having double "oo" perforation, along line of single small "o" perforations in front and back, shoulder seams, double "oo" perforations and lower edges even; stitch belt and pleats 1/2 inch from folded edges, leaving openings between single small "o" perforations to pass belt through. If blouse is made without pleats, adjust belt to position, upper edge of belt at large "O" perforation in back. Turn hem at lower edge of blouse on double "oo" perforations. Turn hem in shield at notches. Sew standing collar to shield as notched; small "o" perforations indicate center-back.

Slitch on the sleeve pockets; then close sleeve seams; close cuff seam as notched, face and sew to short sleeve, double "oo" perforations and seams even. Sew sleeve into armhole with as few gathers as possible.

Now close underarm and shoulder seams of underbody and stitch hem in the back. If pleated bloomers are preferred turn under extension on slot perforations. The double "oo" perforations indicate center-back. Pleat upper edge, placing "T" on corresponding small "o" perforations. Close leg seam as notched; turn hem at lower edge on small "o" perforations; insert elastic or a drawstring. Close center seam from upper edge in front to extension in back. Lap right back on left, centers even and tack at lower edge.

Sew bloomers to lower edge of underbody, centers even. Incidentally the blouse may be used separately with serge skirts.
